INTRODUCTORY

Boston University was chartered by the Massachusetts legislature in 1869, the original incorporators being Isaac Rich, Lee Claflin and Jacob Sleeper. The business affairs are vested in a corporation of not more than fifty trustees, whose only qualification for membership is their election, ten of whom may be nominated by the Alumni. The educational affairs of the University are administered by a University Council, consisting of the President of the University and the Deans of the various departments; a University Senate, consisting of the Council and the professors of the various Faculties. The Convocation consists of all those who have been promoted to degrees.

The University includes the following departments: The College of Liberal Arts (1873); the College of Business Administration (1913); the School of Theology (1871); the School of Law (1872); the School of Medicine (1873) and the Graduate School (1874). The University is also doing important work through late afternoon and Saturday courses for Teachers, through Summer Session Courses, through the Community Schools of Religious Education, and through extension courses in recreational leadership for Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, etc.

The chief benefactor of the University was Isaac Rich, in whose honor the Institution founded sixty-three free scholarships. Since then the University has founded over two hundred other scholarships, as well as four fellowships.

During the year 1916-17 a fund was established to be known as the Augustus Howe Buck Scholarship fund, available to men in the College of Liberal Arts with unusual promise in mental ability, physical fitness, force of character and other personal qualities, promising later usefuless. Appointment is made in the Freshman year, and may continue throughout College life and, if the career warrants it, through a subsequent year or two.

The property held by the institution is valued at $3,338,210,72. The number of instructors at the present time is 232, and the number of students 2,500 men and 900 women. This does not include students enrolled in extension courses and community schools which totalled over 3,700.

The name of the institution, by which it has been conferred follows the academic degree. The omission of it indicates that the degree was given by the Boston University.

A star (*) after a name denotes that the individual is deceased.: In every case in which the year of the decease is known it is indicated at the right.

When an address appears in parentheses it denotes that it is the last known address.

In case of an alumnus who holds more than one degree from Boston University, the full record and address are given only under the school from which he was first graduated, the name only being given in the records of subsequent degrees.

In the case of married women graduates, the name under which the degree was received is given first, with the married name immediately following in parenthesis, the same rule applying to the General Index; and in the Locality Index, the graduates are listed under their married name. For example: Class List insertion—May Jane Smith (Mrs. John M. Jones); General Index insertion—Smith, May Jane (Mrs. John M. Jones), b. 06.
